

Additional Learning on HTML5: A guide for better understanding of the concepts

- Learn HTML <!DOCTYPE> Declaration at http://www.w3schools.com/tags/tag_doctype.asp
- Time for some learning on HTML5 Semantic Elements. Visit http://www.w3schools.com/html/html5_semantic_elements.asp
- Old is not always gold! Learn the deprecated features through HTML Element Reference. Go to <http://www.w3schools.com/tags/>
- Handling events through Event attribute are here. http://www.w3schools.com/tags/ref_eventattributes.asp
- Multimedia and HTML5 – made for each other! Learn how you get the best of both worlds. http://www.w3schools.com/html/html_media.asp
- HTML5 allows you to track Geolocation too! It's interesting. http://www.w3schools.com/html/html5_geolocation.asp
- HTML Global Attributes are up for learning next. http://www.w3schools.com/tags/ref_standardattributes.asp
- Scalable Vector Graphics are very much in. Learn basic of SVG elements at <http://www.w3schools.com/svg/default.asp>
- Heard of HTML Canvas Element, right? Learn more on the same here. <http://www.w3schools.com/canvas/default.asp>
- What you can do without user input. Learn the HTML Input attributes in details. http://www.w3schools.com/html/html_form_attributes.asp
- Time for learning Input types now. http://www.w3schools.com/html/html_form_input_types.asp
- Finally let's learn the Delta new of HTML5 over earlier versions. http://www.w3schools.com/html/html5_new_elements.asp